TICKETS ON SALE JULY 6TH

TUCSON, AZ, June 26, 2018---Tucson Jazz Festival organizers announced today that the fifth annual festival – taking place January 11-21, 2019 in Downtown Tucson – will kick off on Friday, January 11 with 14-year-old phenom, pianist Joey Alexander plus the Tucson Jazz Institute Ellington Band, which has made the top three best high school bands for eight years in a row. The festival concludes on Monday, January 21 with the Free Downtown Jazz Fiesta on MLK Day sponsored by Rio Nuevo, with local bands on multiple stages, both indoors and out. Last year, the multi-day festival drew more than 20,000 attendees. More than half of the attendees were visitors from outside of Tucson, contributing to the overall $1.1 million economic impact in the community.

The festival also features performances by Bobby McFerrin, Asleep at the Wheel, Trombone Shorty (by UAPresents) Pink Martini and the Tucson Symphony Orchestra, Special EXF with special guests Regina Carter and Eric Marienthal, Tribute to Nelson Riddle, Kathleen Grace with Larry Goldings, an all-women double bill with the Magos Herrera Quartet and Jane Bunnett and Maqueque, NEA Jazz Master Sheila Jordan and Cameron Brown, and others. Two of the shows are sponsored by the Tucson Desert Song Festival: Mr. McFerrin and the all-women show.

“This year we sold out seven out of our nine concerts and I felt it was a huge challenge to come up with a line-up that could match or top that record,” says Yvonne Ervin, the founding Executive Director, now Artistic Director. “But, I’m confident these shows will appeal to our audience as much as this years’ shows.”
